

The Worshipful Company of Pattenmakers

New Company Tie

Launched at the Common Meal to an enthusiastic response

Back in the Spring the Master, Richard Page, proposed that the Company should have a new tie to replace the now dwindling stock of the original version bearing the Company's arms. He suggested that it should be:

- a quality product, most probably silk;
- a conversation piece - drawing attention to our Company;
- something that all Liverymen and Freemen would wish to wear.

To this end a 'Tie Team' was formed to crack the issue. The crack team has comprised our Upper Warden Simon Goodman, Renter Warden Christopher Hayward and Court Assistant Colin Sewell-Rutter. After various ideas and a review by the Court the final outcome is shown below left.

The design selected is simple and elegant: a patten design on a plain woven silk background. It is being produced in two colourways: claret with gold pattens, and navy blue with silver pattens. The 'keep' on the back of the tie is embroidered with the Company's name: 'The Worshipful Company of Pattenmakers.'

The tie was unveiled at an excellent Common Meal on 20th September to an enthusiastic welcome - to judge from the fact almost every Liveryman present placed an immediate order. Most purchased both colours at a special price for the night of £30 inc. p&p for the two. The price for a single tie of either colour is £18.50 inc. p&p. Because of its popularity the £30 for two deal is now being extended to the whole Livery as a special introductory offer.

The hope is that everyone will wish to have one or two ties. Orders are invited using the form below.

By the way, our ladies are not to lose out in this matter: a new team, led by Liveryman Sarah Leijten, is to consider an item of apparel or an accessory that would fulfil similar objectives to the tie.
